Next Step: Drafting the Full Outline

Now that we have a clear vision, I'll begin writing a detailed, structured outline that lays out each

That makes total sense. We'll keep it focused on the ideas, not personal details. If a real-world example is helpful, we can either:

1. Keep it vague (general observations rather than personal stories).
2. Frame it as hypothetical ready. It lays out the flow of the book, making sure everything is clear, engaging, and builds naturally toward the deeper revelations.

- The Tangential Point of Zero and Infinity (God) – The mathematical and existential definition of God as a fundamental reality.
- Continuity Is Awareness – How consciousness itself is defined by the unbroken flow of what came before.
- How our perception of time is actually a function of our consciousness, not an external force.
- The multiversal implications of Absolute Continuity—why reality may be an infinite recursion of itself.
